THE COUNTY CAPITAL

The News of the Week in Doylestown as Gathered by Our Special Correspondent.

Doylestown, January 28, 1908.

Martyrs of old, we are told, suffered even death for principle. Christian Hartner, a German baker of Plumstead township, did not go quite that far, but he served Saturday and Sunday in the County Jail rather than pay a fine of $2 imposed upon him by a Justice of the Peace when he was arraigned for keeping his son out of school.

It was such a case as may be brought under the much discussed and generally condemned compulsory education laws, but it was an unusual step that Hartner took, and it appears to have aroused a lot of hard feeling in his township. Hartner, it seems, was obliged to keep his boy out of school because the man drove his baker wagon left and the boy was the only one who knew the route. The directors wouldn't accept the excuse and Hartner, in his disgust and anger, declared that he would go to jail rather than pay the money. That was all there was to it, except that the Justice consented to allow the prisoner to go to jail Friday evening, after his week's work was done, so that the imprisonment would not interfere with his business. From the rumors which come drifting in it is likely that the township will have some red-hot discussions over the affair.

Speaking of the law a few days ago, a School Director said: "It is all right, but it needs a lot of common sense to be used in its administration, and unfortunately there are some officials who don't seem blessed that way."

MEN AND THE CHURCHES.

"Why do so few men attend church?" Rev. A. O. Gilmore, pastor of the First Baptist Chuch, took this as the theme of his Sunday evening sermon and read replies from prominent men of the town. From these replies the idea might be gotten that nearly every man has a different reason. Some stay home, it seems, because business is so strenuous that they take Sunday to rest up. Others said that they did not believe in the divinity of Jesus Christ or his miracles.

The multiplicity of social events which tire men out was another reason. Among others was the fact that men get in the habit of staying home from associating with others who do the same thing. Some are too tired to go, and one man frankly said it is because they do not like the preacher. "Mere excuses," said the minister, who proceeded to tear the reasons to bits and show that there was not one of them held water. So far as not liking the preacher—was concerned he said: "That is nothing new. Ten thousand ministers will tell you that there are always people in churches who at first seem to want to eat them alive and afterward are sorry they didn't. It was the same with Silas and Paul, and the people even crucified Jesus Christ." He also ridiculed the idea that men stay away because there are inconsistent members in the churches. "I know they say that," said Mr. Gilmore, "And I also know that there will be no hypocrites in heaven, nor any of those who make hypocrites and excuses; so they'll get together sometime whether they want to or not." But the preacher did not say what the real reason is, frankly confessing that he had always been at a loss to know why it is so.

POLITICIANS ACTIVE.

With no particular reason to explain it the members of both parties turned out in full at the primaries Saturday night. There was practically no opposition, actually hardly candidates enough for the offices, yet the crowds were out and enthusiastic.

WHAT WILL HE DO?

Will the factory inpectors make some sweeping changes in the arrangement of some of our public buildings when he comes to inspect them in a few days? Speculation on this score is rife. It is pointed out that the least he can do will be to force managements of public buildings to put up signs indicating the location of fire escapes, which has not been done yet. If he is a conscientious individual and really wants to look after the public's protection from loss of life or limb in cases of fires, he will condemn the arrangement of some buildings, particularly one church which has its auditorium on the second floor and has only a winding stairway and a mite of a door as means of egress. Of course the truth of the matter is that no one really expects any changes to be made, until one of these days there is a fire and loss of life as the result of architectural foolishness. The Boyertown affair was an awful thing, but have you noticed that people are already forgetting it as a matter too far in the past to take up much attention. The effect, so far as bringing about needed improvements, was spasmodic and sporadic at best.

HOW FAR DO YOU WALK?

If some folks knew how far they walk every day there would be more tired men and women in this world than at present are noticeable. From the experiment made by a Doylestown attorney, who carries a pedometer, it can be fairly judged that the average person walks about five miles or more every day. That is, the man who simply walks out of his office to a few business places, up and down stairs and around the house, covers about five miles. Men who get around a great deal travel a much longer distance, and it is doubtful if many of them realize that they exert themselves one-half as much as they really do.

SOME HISTORICAL RELICS.

Within the past week a number of exhibits have been presented to the Bucks County Historical Society. Sixteen old parchment deeds dating from 1727 to 1824, by Leidy Sheip, of Doylestown, covering the title of the old Sheip farm in New Britain, completed the chain of title from the grant of 5000 acres to Thomas Hudson by William Penn, down to the ownership by the Sheip family and several subsequent conveyances. A unique collection of birds' eggs was presented by William L. Fanshawe, including one of the American humming bird in its quaint lichen-covered nest. A swingle-tree, patented in 1844, by means of which the horse would be detached from the wagon by the driver without leaving the vehicle was also presented by Leidy Sheip. Miss Anna M. North, of Trenton, N. Household Cares

Tax the Women of Pennsylvania the Same as Elsewhere.

Hard to attend to household duties
With a constantly aching back.
A woman should not have a bad back,
And she wouldn't if the kidneys were well.

Doan's Kidney Pills make well kidneys.

Here's is a Pennsylvania woman who endorses this claim:

Mrs. Susan C. Belden, of 424 Harrison Ave., Scranton, Pa., says: "Several years ago I gave out a statement for publication recommending Doan's Kidney Pills. I had given this remedy a trial and it had relieved me of an attack of backache which I believe was caused by imperfect action of the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills stopped the aching and the pain and at the present time I have no reason to alter my previous opinion as to the value and effectiveness of this remedy. If anything my estimation has been strengthened for since that time I have learned of other cases in which the most satisfactory results were obtained through the use of Doan's Kidney Pills.

The New York Tribune Index.

The files of a newspaper contain the embodied history of the world. But finding what one wants in them unaided is like the proverbial search for a needle in a haystack. One might almost as well have a locked treasure chest without a key. The key that unlocks newspaper files is an index. For over thirty years The New York Tribune has published an annual index to what appears in its columns. The same index is of use with files of other newspapers, so far as general news is concerned, for the news of the same day may be found in all. In addition, for a file of The Tribune, The Tribune Index conveys information in regard to a multitude of special articles, editorials, book reviews, correspondence and other features of a distinctive character. It is a key to a great storehouse of facts. With its cross-references anything desired can be readily found. Price $1.00.

CONCERNING COLDS

Their Causes, Prevention and Cure.

It is astonishing to note how many are afflicted with colds at the present time. Yet, not so astonishing after all, when we study the conditions which cause them, or make them possible.

A cold is a disagreeable thing. It makes one feel miserable and unhappy while it lasts. Even this is not all. A cold is a constitutional ailment and is therefore apt to become a serious matter—liable to develop into a more dangerous disease.

Being exposed to a draft, going from a warm into a cold atmosphere, going out without a coat or hat on, getting wet, etc., are generally supposed to cause colds, but this is a great mistake. Of course these "exposures" will cause the manifestation which are termed colds, but they are not the real causes of colds, and in fact, are beneficial under proper conditions. Cold is an enemy to disease. Cold air is a great purifying agent. With but one exception, possibly, cold will kill disease germs. It is generally conceded that winter is healthier than summer. Then, if cold is an enemy to disease, how can it produce disease? Or, if cold air or cold water destroys disease germs, and tends to purify, how can they cause colds? It is the impure condition of the blood—the presence of surplus impurities in the body which makes colds possible. In other words, when one is in a perfect physical condition, to catch a cold through any of the so-called causes would be an impossibility, though if the same person would spend half an hour or more in a crowded and overheated room, and breathe the warm impure air, made impure through the process of heating, or being breathed over and over again, and goes out into the pure fresh air, a cold will be the natural result. But it was the warm air and not the cold air that deposited in the blood through the lungs, the impurities which the body is now trying to throw off by the aid of the cold air. The cold air catches up the impurities and throws them out in the breath.

Overeating sometimes causes colds by filling the body with more impurities than the eliminating organs can discharge.

Too much clothing may produce colds by hindering the skin from eliminating its share of impurities.

Constipation and stagnant kidneys are frequent causes, occasioned by improper food, and insufficient drinking of pure water.

Cure: Keep in the pure fresh air at all times. Ventilate your bedroom well. Drink from two to five pints of water daily. Take a warm bath, then a cold sponge bath, followed by brisk rubbing with a rough towel. Eat lightly for a few days, or avoid eating altogether, if no appetite exists. Avoid all kinds of meats and pastries. If constipated, adopt natural means at once to get rid of it. Take exercises affecting the trunk of the body, adopt the plain diet, avoiding white bread, pastries and meats, using instead, brown, rye or corn bread, and fruits and vegetables.

Following these instructions will stop a cold in a short time, often within twenty-four hours.—Phrenological Era.

The Korean never cuts his hair or beard. To do so is considered a mark of dishonor to his parents, whom he strongly reverences. Any hairs that may happen to come out, and even the parings of his finger-nails, are carefully saved and put into the coffin with him, in order that he may go back to mother earth intact.

The grandest train in the world is the Kaiser's. It cost $1,000,000, and took three years to build. In the twelve sumptuous saloons are two nursery coaches, a gymnasium, a music room, and a drawing-room furnished with oil paintings and statuary. The treasure-room with its two safes is burglar-proof.

The wedding dress of lilac poplin worn by Queen Alexandra on the occasion of her marriage is still very carefully preserved. This dress was chosen in compliment to Queen Victoria, who always had a love of lilac.

Andalusia.

The younger Mrs. Hoffmeier is quite sick with quinsy at the present writing.

The son of Mr. Ritchie, who has been seriously ill with malarial fever, is better.

Mrs. Willard has been ill for some two weeks, but is now about once more, as usual.

Mrs. Converse who has been visiting for some weeks at the rectory, has returned to her home in New York, her daughter, Mrs. Van Meter, accompanying her, the latter to remain a few days in the great metropolis.

The King Library is frequently indebted to its friends and well wishers for long loans of standard magazines, illustrated papers, domestic and foreign. A new lot has just been placed upon its tables by Mrs. Biddle, Harper's Weekly, the Geographical Magazine, the Outlook, etc.

We regret to record the recent death of the elder Mrs. Seipler. For many years Mr. and Mrs. Seipler were residents of Andalusia, but for the last three years they have lived near Eddington. They were both very ill of late as we have heard. The sympathy of many friends and old neighbors will go out to the father and son.

The lecture of Prof. Wilkinson tomorrow evening will be on George Washington, one of the most sacred figures in all secular history. It will be interesting to study him in comparison and contrast with that other great and equally revered character who gives a like glory to our Republic—Abraham Lincoln.

We often wonder if there is no keener disposition apparent on the part of strong and active young lads to do something to put money in their purses. In the morning after the snow storm we almost expected to see a line of them with snow-shovels ready for employment. We like the sturdy independence and youthful ambition that such opportunities can easily beget.

The storm of Friday last week placed a pretty effectual quietus on our village life. The trolley cars ran only irregularly, the schools were partly closed, and we were almost entirely "snow bound." Even the boys, who have been so almost uproariously enjoying the wonderful weather of late, "came to order" for a time. Their time comes when the snow packs, sleds can run, and the snow-ball battles can begin.

Dr. Joseph Fox has purchased the former Borie property, until a few years ago the residence of John F. Lewis and family, and of late rented and occupied by Mr. Waters from New Jersey. The beautiful house will undergo extensive repairs and will soon be ready, we hope, for its new owner, who will find a warm welcome awaiting him from his old friends in Andalusia.

Dr. Van Buren has removed to Germantown, the family taking their final departure on Thursday of last week. They came here from Germantown several years ago, and since that time have become pretty fairly established among us. We wish their prosperity and happiness in their return to their earlier home and friends. Mrs. Van Buren was a valued member of the Chapel and its Guild, and will be much missed.

Those who are attending Dr. Griffis' lectures on "Japan," will find charm and interesting reading in "The Lady of the Decoration," one of the new books recently added to our Library. Notwithstanding it was first published a year or so ago, the papers say that two book-binderies are kept at work to supply the continuous demand for it from the publishers. Its scene is laid in the recent war between Japan and Russia. The letters which make up the pretty love story are said to have been actually written.

Perhaps we do not err if we cross a little beyond the line of Andalusia proper, now and then, in our weekly chronicle. We wrote that in Cornwells on Saturday evening, January 25th, an illustrated lecture on Alaska was to be given for the benefit of the Methodist Church. We hope there was a generous response to the effort made by pastor and people. That the spirit of neighborhood prevails pleasantly between our neighbors up there and ourselves is indicated by pleasant vists we have recently received from Mr. Shaw and family and Father McCue, the latter within the past week.

We had the great pleasure of a shake of the hand with Dr. Griffis, the lecturer of last week. Such men, modest as they are, are truly to be reckoned among the Empire builders. Japan owes what she is today largely to the Missionaries who trained so many of her present leading statesmen and ambassadors in the principles and methods and thought-ways of our Christian civilization. One remark he made to us was noteworthy. In commenting with pleasure in the number of boys at the lecture he said, that was what they always aimed at in the Missionary work in Japan—to secure the young. We commend the sentiment to the parents of our own bright boys and girls. Are we doing them justice in their home-training?

The editor of the esteemed Collegeville Independent fluttered a hornet's nest when he ran counter, in a discussion with a pulpit orator. We fancy, however, that the expounder of the gospel has not yet sounded the depths of the editor's wisdom, logic and general preparedness for just such theological contests.

The editor of the Schwenksville Item says that as soon as a Philadelphia clergyman (Dr. Charles Wood.) had declared his unbelief in the existence of an old-fashioned hades he received and accepted a call from Washington, D. C. Washington may have its own peculiar ideas regarding punishment in the hereafter, nevertheless, it will probably get all that is coming to it at the proper time.

At the Republican primaries held in Pittsburg on Saturday Senator Flinn's candidate for City Controller was defeated for nomination. The Philadelphia Inquirer, the organ of the Penrose organization, is gleeful over the result and says that Flinn's reform movement has been overwhelmed. We have lived long enough in close proximity to Philadelphia to learn that it is not always the most desirable element in politics that triumphs at the polls.

The Capitol graft cases are on trial at Harrisburg. Mark this—if the evidence gets so close to the gentlemen under indictment that they can view the shadows of the penitentiary, there will be a regular "squealing" match, and perhaps some who have not yet been publicly mentioned in connection with the jobbery will become afflicted with nervous prostration. No sane man can believe, that Houston, Sanderson et al, got away with such an amount of swag. Nay, nay!

Our esteemed, but misguided local contemporary, the Weekly Courier, says that the action of Congressman Wanger in presenting a bill for an appropriation for a federal building in Bristol demonstrates the "keen" interest Senator Penrose takes in the advancement and growth of our town. We hail with joy the changed conditions which are now alleged to exist; and we are pleased to learn from such an authoritative source that Senator Penrose is no longer in the frame of mind that he was some time ago when conditions were not so propitious as now, when in a petulant fit he exclaimed, "To hell with Bucks county, it's wiped off the map."

The esteemed Philadelphia Press announces the retirement of Calvin Wells as president of "The Press" Company and the election in his place of his son, Benjamin G. Wells. In announcing its new policy the Press states that Accuracy is to be the keynote, and that hereafter it will be under obligations to no one—individual, corporate or political—and will be allied to no particular faction within the party. There is abundant room for just such a newspaper as the Press proposes to be—a fearless, independent Republican newspaper. If it will stick to its announced policies it is certain to meet with abundant reward. Power and success to the new management.

INCREASE IN MANUFACTURES.

The exports of manufactures by the United States in the calendar year 1907 amounted to about $770,000,000. This was $120,000,000 in excess of our importation of manufactures in that year. And the growth in exports of fabrics is larger than in that of imports. It is only in the past ten years that we have been selling more manufactures to the outside world than we have bought from it. Until 1897 our imports of fabrics of different sorts always exceeded our exports.

As everybody will understand, our ability to sell manufactures abroad is a decisive test of the strength of our industrial system. We are able to make large sales of wheat, cotton, copper and other raw materials abroad because we have a monopoly in some of these things. The world is compelled to come to us for them. It cannot get them elsewhere. But with the products of our factories the situation is different. In selling our iron, steel, copper and other manufactures in the outside world we come into competition with the foreign manufactures, and in the cases where we beat them we do so because of manifest superiority in workmanship or price.

The increase in our sales of manufactures abroad in recent years has been one of the marvels of our industrial expansion. While our exports of manufactures were less than $1,000,000 a day in 1897, they were more than $2,000,000 a day in 1907. This growth is several times as great as that which took place in our population in those ten years. There are several reasons for this great increase in manufactures exports. The riches in volume and variety of our raw materials, the ingenuity of our inventors and the capability and versatility of our people are among the causes. The tariff, however, started us on the road toward industrial supremacy. Through the protection which it has given the home producer it has enabled him to build up an industrial scheme which far surpasses that of any other two countries in extent and variety. The growth in our exports of manufactures represents the outlet which we are winning for our surplus. Although our people increase in number and in their purchasing power, the output of the home manufacturer expands faster than the consumptive capacity of the home market. We must continue to sell more goods to the outside world in order to keep our workers busy in bad as well as in good times.

Commuters Will Be Happy Now.

Commencing tomorrow, January 1st, all the restrictions placed on the various forms of commutation tickets after the two-cent rate law was passed, will be removed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. The agent at Bristol has been notified to resume the sale of the 180-trip three months' tickets and the 100-trip tickets good for a year. Package tickets will also be good for a year. All other privileges withdrawn pending the decision of the Court will be restored.

The special clerical orders will also be restored on March 1.

RANDOM REFLECTIONS.

GET TOGETHER.

If the Republican party thinks it can elect the next Republican Presidential candidate without a struggle, it is making a mistake. There should be concerted effort in every city and town in the country to this end. The leaders of the party must teach the rank and file of its membership something of the importance of getting together. Few Republicans can realize how nearly all believe alike and how shadowy their differences appear upon the fundamental issues of their platform—which have been exaggerated by one and another so far beyond the real truth—until they come together face to face and discussion to discussion.

All Republicans should agree to accept any and all fundamental principles of their party, if they retain the true spirit of Republicanism. Every Penrose man every Flinn man; every City party man; every Lincoln Party man; every man, in fact, who claims to be a Republican, should get together with every other man of his party, and unite on one candidate for the presidency of this nation, and then stand shoulder to shoulder to elect him. Division means weakness; union strength.

There is no dearth of candidates—no dearth of strong men in the Republican ranks. Such names as Taft, Knox, Cannon and Hughes are a guarantee of the kind of material around which the party may rally. The only hope of success is to be found in union. The political garment must not be rent. Every Republican should believe in his party, its principles, and its candidate. He should show to the world by his personal interest and his vote that a Republican President is essential to the future prosperity of this country. Belief in his candidate is the very foundation of his whole political structure. And his belief should be emphasized at the polls on election day, and during the interregnum he should go forth and work for his candidate as he has never worked before.

EVIL SPEAKING.

These are the days of differences and petty strife, particularly in the smaller towns where the people are more closely bound together, and where our neighbors, at times, seem to know more about our business than ourselves. This is easily understood. The cause may be traced to the dearth of common subjects of conversation. Life goes on in a monotonous daily routine. The lack of common topics brings the conversation around to personalities. Personal virtues are forgotten; personal failings discussed. Somebody is hurt. Somebody resents the hurt. Enmity is engendered. This is the curse of it all. Hence, the evil results of judging and condemning, the actions of others, rather than ourselves, can hardly be estimated.

We are told by a prominent writer that "Charity of speech is as divine a thing as charity of action. The tongue that speaketh no evil is as lovely as the hand which giveth alms. To judge no one harshly, to misconceive no man's motives, to believe things are what they seem to be until they are proved otherwise, to temper judgment with mercy—surely is quite as good as to build up churches, establish asylums, and to found colleges."

To do all this we must keep clear of personalities in general conversation, or, as far as possible, dwell on the good side of human beings. The tendency to condemn others is so common with us all, joined as it is with that supercilousness which thinketh evil, that we need, indeed, to learn how fully the mind of the just is against this prevalent source of discord.

THE BIBLE ON WORK.

The Bible talks to the merchant, the customer, the physician, the patient, the lawyer, the client, the minister, the people. It is not speculative; it is practical. It does not mean to give specific rules for the government of every action, like the Arabian commentaries, which contain seventy-five thousand directions for the conduct of life, nevertheless, it does mean to give general rules. It does not say just what shall be our work, but it says we shall work. We may have worked many years, and during those years, we may have earned sufficient to permit us to retire from active business. That is right. It is well. It is Biblical. The man who retires with money is not living on others. He pays his way, and this is Biblical.

The whole teaching of the Bible is to unite religion and industry. At the very dawn of human history, when man first awoke from his airy light sleep, and the sun advanced with rosy steps in Eastern climes, and sowed the earth with orient pearls, he was taught to earn his bread in the sweat of his face. It is a truism, that work does not kill; worry kills, but work will keep us healthy, while worry is to the human body what rust is to the wash-boiler.

The history of Christ, aside from His Divinity, is the history of an intense worker. From the carpenter shop in Nazareth, to the death scene on Calvary, was one long period of work. "Teaching, preaching, traveling, doing works of mercy; bearing patiently with the fretful impatience of the stiff-necked and the ignorant, and enduring without a murmur the incessant and selfish pressure of the multitude. His whole life of poverty consoled and sanctified the estate of poverty, and ennobled the duty of labor." Indeed, He chose the condition in which the vast majority of mankind must even live. To such men as Beau Brummel He had nothing but scorn and contempt. Under His quickening inspiration, philosophy and science became fields of industry for a Bacon, a Kepler, a Harvey and a Newton. Under His patronage art—sacred and secular—took its rise with a Ruben and a Raphael as its representatives. Under the mighty spell of His wonderful eloquence literature became a factor in the world for good, and a Johnosn, a Milton, a Butler, a Dryden and a Shakespeare were born to give added worth to the world's great masterpieces of scholarship. So the writers and not the readers; the thinkers and not the idlers; the artists and not the indolent critics; the inventors and not the scoffers have come to be the men whom the world delights to honor—whether rich or poor—as the useful men of their day and generation.

GREAT DISASTERS.

The fearful losses of life and property by fire cannot be accurately estimated. Take the great conflagrations of St. John's, Newfoundland; London, England; Moscow, Russia; Boston, Chicago, Baltimore, San Francisco and elsewhere in this country. Who can tell anything of the loss of life and property?

We know that thousands upon thousands of dollars' worth of property were lost in the dreadful fire which occurred at St. John's, Newfoundland, in the year 1846. But we shall never be able to tell the whole story.

We know that the great fire in London in 1666, destroyed 1,200 houses, 87 churches, 6 chapels, the Royal Exchange, the Custom House, the jail at Newgate, three city gates, the Guildhall, and four bridges. We know that it laid waste 400 streets, and drove 200,000 homeless people to take shelter in the fields. But that does not tell the whole story.

We know that—previous to the conflagration of 1812, which destroyed two-thirds of the city—Moscow presented the most extraordinary contrasts,—palaces alternating with huts, Asiatic with European buildings, and open fields and gardens with crowded streets; and, we know what happened to it all in the year 1812. But that does not tell the whole story.

Such things are facts, and generally speaking, facts are dry as saw-dust. No, we must see the men, women and children of the doomed city of Moscow, setting fire to their own homes in obedience to their sovereign's demands. We must see Napoleon, aghast at the ruin of all his hopes and schemes, commencing that fatal retreat, which utterly disorganized and routed one of the finest armies that ever followed the French standard. We must see the horrors of the journey—the 125,000 who perished in battle—the 130,000 who died of fatigue, hunger, and cold; and the 190,000 who were made prisoners. We must see everything from the destruction of a palace to the burning of a hut; from the slaughtering of an army to the convulsive death-throes of a little maid. Then, and not until then, shall we know much about such terrible catastrophies.

However, for our own part, we are glad to know, that the great majority of men and women are content with the facts of a given case. They read of the destruction of Chicago in 1871. They know that the fire spread over the area of 2,100 acres, and destroyed $200,000,000 of property. It is well. It is enough. They know that Baltimore had a terrible conflagration in 1901—that the Monumental city lost $100,000,000 of property. They know that there was a great fire in Boston, in the year 1872, which destroyed 776 buildings, the total value of which was estimated at $60,000,000. They know that San Francisco lost millions of money while in the grip of the earthquake and the flames. They know that Boyertown lost 176 of its men, women and children; and that is enough for human nature to know. Anything more than the bare facts of these terrible disasters would fill our insane asylums with raving maniacs, and drive thousands to seek oblivion in suicide.

IMPROVIDENCE.

These are hard times for the working people of Bristol.

Work has been very scarce of late, and many of us are feeling the effects of the financial depression. But good times are coming. Some of the mills are running on half time or full time, and others are about to start. We shall soon be in full swing again, and then everything will be all right.

That is easily and truthfully said, but a remark made in our hearing by a leading manufacturer is still ringing in our ears. It was to this effect. These hard times will give us time to reflect on the financial conditions of our town; they will promote in us a desire for thrift and economy.

We are not so much concerned with the "financial" end of this remark, as we are with the "thrift and economy" end of it. That belongs to the man of wealth; this to the wage-earner. Any number of deep theories have been advanced to explain our financial stringency. We have been told that the cause is to be found in the pronouncements of our President, or in the knavery of Wall street, or in this, or that. Seldom have we been told of our improvidence; of a whole nation spending more money than we earn, living beyond our means, doing a business unwarranted by the amount of our capital, and constantly taking foolish risk.

This is the way a Western man sees it. "Some years ago," he said, "about the time Horace Greeley was exhorting the young man to go west, that region was enjoying unexampled prosperity. The territory was being rapidly developed and towns and cities were springing up like mushrooms in a summer night. Eastern and European capital flowed freely in. Instead of carefully investing and protecting their enormous gains, and living on frugally until they had come to solid wealth, the western people lost their heads, indulged in the most flamboyant prodigality, threw their money right and left until their extravagance became a proverb, and then, when the bodkin of natural law punctured the tire of their debt—scorching, down they came! Ever since the collapse they have been wrestling with mortgages, burst booms and the other debt-born members of the family of Nemesis."

In one way or another the same thing goes on in the eastern part of our country, and some of it right here in Brisol. The practical point is this. We should do everything in our power to save something for a "rainy-day" when there is plenty of work, and times are good.

A SATISFACTORY EXPERIMENT.

When a celebrated clergyman of New York City asked his congregation to contribute $25,000 to be invested in a benevolent pawn-brokerage business, the proposal was received with a good deal of chaffing. But there was nothing ridiculous in the motive of the enterprise. As a matter of fact the scheme has been worked out to the entire satisfaction of all the persons concerned in the venture, and a recent leading newspaper has this comment upon it:

"When a rich man needs money, he can obtain it at the lowest rate of interest, but when a poor man needs money he must give a chattel mortgage, and pay at the rate of from 25 to 40 per cent. interest." Now, as everybody knows, this is a great hardship, which the experiment was intended to relieve. "In the first eight months of its existence," according to the official report, "the Loan Bureau received from fees on mortgages, interest and instalments $34,798. Of the many thousands of dollars loaned on furniture, and for which chattel mortgages were taken, there has not been a single foreclosure, and only $10 have been lost.

"Of this undertaking, that experiment,' for experiment it was, is an experiment no longer. This is certainly satisfactory, not only from a financial point of view, but from an ethical and social. It shows that the wage-earning class of the community is just as sensitively conscientious in meeting its obligagtions as the wealthier and more prosperous class."

STRENGTH OUT OF WEAKNESS.

Once upon a time a great man of a past age said, "When I am weak, then I am strong." It was a strange paradox, for weakness is the very opposite of strength, and yet this man assures us that weakness is really strength. Let us see how this works out. A sense of weakness has a natural tendency to make us strong, because it puts us on our guard against ourselves. We see that self-dependence is a broken reed. We cannot understand nor explain it, and yet we are forced to acknowledge the fact. This sets us thinking, and we soon realize that thinking is a necessity of our marvelous mechanism; the vibrations of an eternal pendulum; the surge-beats, to vary the figure, of an intelligent spirit on the mystic shores of consciousness.

In fact, the man who does not think is a wreck on the shores of time. Progress can only begin in thought, and all far-reaching progress is the result of thought wrought out under deep conviction. Conviction may come from the mine of the world's literature, but it can only be had for the digging; or, it may come from experience amid the stirring objects and lessons of life. Great needs studied, great interests viewed, great thoughts consciously felt—this gives convictions. Sergeant Fredricks, one of the six survivors of an Arctic expedition, said in relation to their holding out against starvation and suffering in their calamity: "It was our minds that did it; we kept our spirits; we wouldn't give in, but kept talking cheerfully; telling stories, as though we had no doubt about our rescue." Lieutenant Greely, the commander, said: "It was the feeling of responsiblity that sustained me. I felt that I had to live anyhow. I felt that I must stand by the men and fulfill the objects of the expedition. A hundred times I should have been glad to die, but in fact I had too many things to attend to."

Assuming, then, that we have found this element of conviction, and that it is based on a broad and deep foundation of ethical culture, it is safe to say, that we have also gained in courage and usefulness. Now we are carried above the dust raised by human reason, and we know that we can march right on to success. We have gotten strength out of weakness. We have come into the possession of a moral, as well as a physical courage.

We remember reading about a gay party who had been spending the sultry months of summer amid the cooler air of the mountains. The monotony of the usual pleasure-seeking was interrupted one day by the arrival of a stranger, whom the landlady discovered at once would not be an agreeable companion for the other guests. He was silent and retiring, and so ill at ease in the table routine, that he was soon ignored by every one, to a degree which was neither courteous nor Christian. In all such promiscuous companies there is always some marked character, who becomes, by common consent, a sort of leader, and the centre of attraction for this gay company was a brilliant married woman, whose ready wit and never-failing spirits made her a general favorite. Her keen sense of humor had not been able entirely to spare this unwelcome stranger, whose attitudes and movements were at times almost irresistible.

One morning, to the astonishment of all, the manner of the witty and charming woman was completely changed toward him, and had he been of royal birth, she could not have been more gentle and gracious.

Under the influence of this unexpected and friendly recognition, the stranger's plain and homely face kindled with new life, and the rest of the company were sobered in spite of themselves. As soon as it was possible to do so, her friends inquired, very curiously, what all this meant, and for once her fluent tongue hesitated for a reply. The color rose in her cheeks, and with a half-nervous attempt at a smile, she answered. "Well, I suppose you will laugh at me, but I cannot help it. The truth is, I heard that man at his prayers this morning, and while I don't pretend to be religious, I must own it was a wonderful thing to hear one talking with God as he did. When I saw him at the table afterward, I felt as if I were looking in the face of some one who had just come out of the presence of the King of kings, and had the very air of heaven about him. I can't help what the rest of you do or say; I shall always have the same feeling whenever I see him."

There was a magnetic earnestness in her tone and look which all felt, and few of the company ever afterward forgot. During the remaining days of his sojourn, the unlearned, uncouth stranger had no lack of friendly courtesy; the gay company were the better for his homely presence, and, unawares, he ministered unto them, and, thus, brought strength out of weakness.

TEMPERANCE CAUSE.

Edited by Bristol W. C. T. U.

CONGRESS AND TEMPERANCE

The present session of Congress promises to have considerable Temperance work on hand. There is no doubt in the mind of those who give study to the subject that our National Houses will not be able to avoid giving their best thought to the many questions involved in the Temperance Reform. The friends of sobriety and anti-license activities are greatly encouraged and sanguine. They see, without straining the vision, that success beyond expectation is really imminent. Our country was never so thoroughly alive as to its duty toward active measures against the saloon and the license system. Just to think of it! Kentucky, known the world over for its famous whiskies, with 97 out of 115 counties in the State actually "dry!"

Someone has said that the Temperance Reform will be conspicuous in the Presidential campaign of 1912. We are not so sure that both of the great parties may not have to place strong Temperance planks in their platforms of 1908. The American people have been long-suffering and patient with the legalized iniquity—almost beyond endurance—but the Southland is showing us the real situation and that the only salvation for South and North is the destruction of the whole liquor traffic. The 'Trade' is seeking to compromise. It must be short-sighted indeed if it imagines for a single moment that the Temperance people will listen to any such proposition. They might just as well talk about compromising with a venomous reptile at large upon the streets of one of our cities as compromising with a legagized system that has proved itself nothing but the enemy of our kind.

There is not one argument that can be advanced in favor of the open dramshop. This is the growing and established sentiment of the people everywhere. We have made up our minds to get rid of the whole business, and we shall never "stack arms" so long as there is an institution among us that by law is allowed to be the means of the death of even one person within the year. The loss of one life from such a cause is the loss of one too many.

We have no right to recognize the existence in a community of that which unnecessarily kills even one man or one woman or one boy or one girl.

WHAT A CHANGE!

A traveling salesman, not yet in his fifties, returned from the South a few weeks ago and declared hereafter he would vote the prohibition ticket. Said he: "For many years I have done business in the South, and it used to be that in order to sell goods you had to set up to drinks; now that is the exception, and it is better for the salesman not even to offer. This change has taken place in my time and I am a young man. I have been opposed to prohibition, but I have already such good results that I shall hereafter vote that ticket." It was also remarked sometime ago that it used to be in the South when governors met they always had whiskey and drank each other's health, now the governors meet and shake hands.

"Five years ago a united industry might have kept back the conditions that now confront us, but today is too late. We might as well try to keep out the Hudson River with a whisk broom." This is an extract from "Beverages," the national organ of the liquor league.

Of the eighty odd millions of people living in this country today, fully thirty millions live in states which have statutory prohibition, or else in territory which is "dry" by local option. When we consider the vast body of European emigrants constantly pouring in upon us, with their continental ideas of the harmlessness of beer and wine, the concern shown by the above extract is most gratifying to the friends of American homes and good government. But we must differ with "Beverages." The liquor interests have been watchful and vigilant. That they have not ruined more homes, sent more young men to dishonored graves and shown a greater crop of widows' curses and orphans' tears, is not their fault. They have done their best and theirr eward awaits them, but all their vigilance would not have stemmed the rising tide of reform.

All friends of temperance, prohibition, or the anti-saloon forces, under whatever banner they are fighting for Christ's Kingdom, can feel wonderfully cheered by this wail from the camp of darkness. With righteous zeal they can pray that the confusion of liquor interests may be worse confounded. The next twelve months bid fair to show a battle royal between the friends and foes of the home all over this country.

THE SALOON.

Most Inhuman Influence in New York today.

Not long since, Magistrate Whitman, of New York City, in addressing the New York Lawyers' Club, was moved to make a most scathing arraignment of the liquor traffic. He said: "Personally, if I had the power, I would close every saloon in the United States, and I am not a crank or fanatic on the liquor question. I drink myself, whenever I care to, and probably shall continue to do so. I am willing that every man shall have the same right that I have. But when you sit on the beach that I sit on and see seventy per cent. of the cases which come before you, and see the misery, distress and crime, all due to liquor selling—I say, any man with red blood in his veins is likely to feel that the world would be infinitely better off if the liquor saloons could be crushed out, cost what it may. I believe it is the most outrageous and the most inhuman influence in New York City today."

The first English yacht race of which there is record was in 1662, when a small boat belonging to Charles II beat one of his brother's in a match for £100.

AFTER 33 YEARS experience millions of users of L. & M. PAINTS, claim;—First, it wears 10 to 16 years. Second, it only costs $1.20 a gallon—Third its the best they have ever used—Fourth, sixteen thousand agents certify to these facts. Fred Leibfreid, L. & M. Paint Agent.

The Old Town Clock.

What ails our borough town clock;
  Has it quite gone out of biz?
Has it no paid custodian
  To make its welfare his?

A week of silence it has passed
  Its works will sure corrode!
If we have a paid custodian
  Why doesn't he "custode?"

M. A. G.

A VALID OBJECTION.

Young Sheridan's Ready Wit Saved Him a Birching.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan early evinced a genius for getting something for nothing and, seeing the door of the refectory had inadvertently been left unlocked, peeped in and saw a huge basket of grapes freshly gathered from the orchard.

Stealthily closing the door and approaching the grapes, he thus addressed them: "I publish the banns of marriage between Richard Brinsley Sheridan and these grapes. Is there any one to forbid the banns?" And, having no reply to his query, he proceeded to fill his breadbasket from the other basket with great gusto. But retribution was to follow, for on the class being reassembled the master called upon Richard Brinsley Sheridan to stand forth and joined with his name the ominous name of Walker, who was the dunce of the school and selected from his weight and size to mount the culprit upon his shoulders in order that the master might get a firm surface upon which to use the birch with effect.

Sheridan being duly mounted and appropriately denuded of superfluous raiment, the master thus addressed him: "I publish the banns of marriage between Richard Brinsley Sheridan and this birch. Is there any just cause or impediment why these two parties should not be joined in holy matrimony?"

"Hold!" yelled Sheridan.

"Well?" said the master.

To which the lad said, "Why, sir, the parties are not agreed!"

This being not only witty but apt, as being a valid objection in point of law, Sheridan was requested to retire and restore himself to his former habiliments amid the uncontrollable laughter of all concerned, including the head master.—Exchange.

INSULTS TO ROYALTY.

Some of the Things That Constitute Leze Majesty in England.

Many people think that leze majesty—giving insult to royalty—is not a crime in Great Britain. The English statute books, however, contain many penalties for such offenses.

Placing a postage stamp on a letter upside down is a punishable offense, as is also the defacement of a coin bearing the royal image. This is insulting the king's effigy.

Private individuals may not raise the royal standard over their dwellings. This is the emblem of the regal authority to be displayed only where the king is present.

While an agitator may talk against royalty in the abstract as much as he chooses, contemptuous or insulting personal references to the reigning sovereign expose the offender to a heavy fine and imprisonment.

The slightest slap upon the face of the king or queen—or any other part of the anatomy, for that matter—is punishable with the death penalty. In the reign of Queen Victoria a Lieutenant Page struck her across the face with his cane. He was sentenced to death, but the queen commuted his sentence.

It is likewise a crime to bring the uniform of the sovereign into contempt. To garb a low comedian or a villain of the stage in a discarded uniform of the army or the navy is sufficient to bring heavy censure from the government. For this reason theatrical managers usually see to it that the uniforms worn are not exactly copies of the real things.

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT.

The Most Brilliant Illumination Is Not Always the Best.

A writer in an engineering magazine offers some disconcerting information on the subject of illumination, disconcerting because the reader will probably find that he has been, innocently enough, following a course of procedure there described as injurious. For instance, in the case of eye strain he may have felt that even the dim light by which he worked was too strong, and so turned down the light, thus increasing the difficulty, or, what is more likely to be the case, when the strain has been caused by too brilliant illumination he fancies that what is needed is stronger light and so increases it.

Overstrain from too bright a light is said to manifest itself by an itching sensation in the eyeballs, with the tendency to rub the eyes for relief. The proper course, then, is to see that the light is more perfectly diffused or softened and that it falls in the right direction. After these precautions have been taken it is worth while to try a smaller quantity of light, this trial to continue long enough in time for the eyes to become fully adjusted to the change. The value of illumination is not to be judged by the apparent brightness of the lights when looked at directly—the brighter the light the better—but by the effect on the object to be looked at, and the most desirable effect, so far as the eyes are concerned, is not always produced by the most brilliant lights.—Indianapolis Star.

The Shape of the Earth.

According to the deductions of J. A. Jeans of Trinity college, Cambridge, the shape of the earth when it began to cool and to solidify from a liquid mass was that of a pear. But its shape could not have been maintained long against the enormous strains which would be set up in it as the process of cooling proceeded, and this shape would gradually give place to an approximately spherical form. Such a configuration would possess a single axis of symmetry, and this axis, it is suggested, passed through a point of latitude and longitude 0 degrees north of 30 degrees east. Thus Africa, the continent whose center above sea level is greatest, must be taken as the center of the land hemisphere, while the protuberance which formed the stalk of the pear is submerged in the Pacific ocean, which now forms the water hemisphere. Almost the only remaining evidence of the existence of this protuberance is the fact that the axis of the pear coincides with the earth's greatest diameter. If we suppose the pear to contract to a spherical shape the change in curvature and the relative displacements would be greatest in the neighborhood of its equator, and hence we should expect to find earthquakes and volcanoes in greatest numbers near to this circle.—Exchange.

Had Tried Electricity.

A benevolent gentleman attempted to converse with the motherly old lady who sat next to him in the railway carriage. He discovered that she was very deaf, and the conversation was established by shouting.

"You are very deaf, aren't you, madam?" ultimately bellowed he of the benevolence.

"I am so," was the reply, "and haven't been able to do a thing for it."

"Have you ever tried electricity?" shouted the kind hearted man.

"Yes," she said, nodding vigorously, "I was struck by lightning last summer."—London Graphic.

OH, FOR A THOUSAND HANDS!

OH, for a thousand hands!
  Tender and white and kind—
That the world might sway
In the light of day
  To the hand of the perfect mind;
That the tears of sorrow and sin and shame
Might leave their burden of blight and blame
And learn to cherish my spirit name.
  Oh, for a thousand hands!

OH, for a thousand hands!
  Tender and large and strong—
That their deeds might pray
For the coming day
  Through the nights that are dark and long.
For in times of travail the nights are such,
And the heart of the woman that loved too much
Might live again at my gentle touch.
  Oh, for a thousand hands!

OH, for a thousand hands!
  For the hands that are smooth and rough,
I toil all day
In the common way,
  But I am not large enough.
'Tis a weary stretch to the crying bench,
And the soul goes farther than hands can reach;
I must write the sermon I cannot preach.
  Oh, for a thousand hands!

OH, for a thousand hands!
  The master's work to do.
I toil all day
As a woman may,
  But my hands are only two!
I stand alone in the village street,
The sad world falling about my feet,
While the suffering God and the stars entreat—
  Oh, for a thousand hands!

The Arab's Pride of Blood.

Of the Arab's pride a traveler writes: "He is proud of his own blood and of his mare's blood for its own sake. He will show you a broken down little crock and inform you, with perfect truth, that she is of the best blood in the Jazirah; he will also show a fine stallion of his own and tell you he is a 'gdish,' or underbred animal, and there is no doubt it is the bad thoroughbred he admires and prefers to the finest made cross breed. As regards his shaykh and tribal leader, he discriminates in an equal degree between the clever warrior, astute diplomatist and good business man of low extraction and the shaykh of high lineage, who may be a miserable epileptical creature, and always to the disadvantage of the low born man."

Infinitesimal Shears.

A clever workman in a cutlery factory in Sheffield, England, made a dozen pairs of shears, each so minute that they altogether weigh less than half a grain. That is about the weight of a postage stamp. Each pair is perfect and will cut if sufficiently delicate material could be found. Lying on a piece of white paper they seem no larger than fleas.

"Did you ever know," remarked the medical authority, "that any one who will constantly practice singing can stave off consumption?" "Even so," replied the hard headed man, "some people might stand a chance of living longer by letting consumption take its course."—Philadelphia Press.

In Siam the number of rooms in a house must always be odd. So with doors and windows. They regard even numbers as very unlucky.

Dried Elderberry Leaves In Asthma.

"If you will gather leaves from an elderberry bush when they are green and let them dry and then put them into a pillow and sleep upon them nightly for about three months," said a Petersburg (Tenn.) man, "they will cure the worst case of asthma. After they are dried the leaves have a peculiar but pleasing odor. By inhaling this odor the asthma is cured. I know a number of people who cured themselves of asthma by sleeping on dried elderberry leaves."—Nashville Tennessean.

Heaven's Secrets.

The following is a true story, vouched for by a correspondent: Her little boy of seven years of age said to her one day: "Mother I know why it is that babies cannot speak until they are twelve months old. It is because they come straight from heaven, and if they were able to talk as soon as they were born they would tell the secrets, and so God doesn't let them speak until they have almost forgotten them."—London Methodist Times.

"Good morning, Madam; I am employed to take orders for Poth's beer. May I put you down for a case this morning?"

"Why, your face seems familiar. Haven't I seen your pictures in the newspapers?"

"Yes! Nearly everybody knows me. I'm Otto!

"Because more and more Poth's beer is being drunk in private homes is why I've been employed to tell you ladies about the superior quality of Poth's and how it is brewed."

"Well, Otto, I fancy I should like beer. But I am afraid it wouldn't be good for us."

"What makes you think that, Madam?"

"Oh, I don't know, Otto, it's just an idea I have."

"Then you should study the question, Madam. This Poth's beer is not only drink but food, and nutritious, wholesome food, too. It has more food value than many vegetables. It contains barley malt in a predigested form and hops, which are a valuable nerve food and tonic. Nearly all persons are distinctly benefitted by drinking a pure, wholesome beer like this Poth's."

"Why, I never knew that, Otto. I thought of beer as being nothing but a drink; I shall try a case and see if it agrees with us as well as you say."

Officer Bloodgood on Tuesday captured Gertrude Breen and Esther Mathias, two girls aged 17 years each, who ran away recently from the Girls' Reformatory at Trenton and returned them to the New Jersey institution. The two upper floors will be designed for flats or apartments. The building will be erected on the site where the recent fire destroyed Mr. Doron's office and lumber shed.

A slick stranger a few days ago succeeded in getting free meals at boarding houses about town. His plan of operation was to go to a boarding house about meal time and inquire if it would be possible to accomodate a dozen men for meals who were coming to work at the new pipe foundry. Then after arrangements were made for the men he would stay for dinner or supper and then depart. He got free meals at several boarding houses on Washington street and Jefferson avenue.

Deputy Factory Inspector James Patterson came to Bristol this week and closed the establishment at the corner of Mill and Pond streets which has been conducted as an amusement place for a moving picture show. The inspector considered the place dangerous, as the entertainments were given in a hall on the second floor from which there is no exit except a narrow winding stairway from the rear end of the hall. There are no fire escapes in the building. The place must be remodelled to meet the requirements of the State Department before it can be used for public gatherings.

THAT BRISTOL FEDERAL BUILDING

The Dream Fades Away as Congress Refuses to Spend any Money for Such Enterprises.

In a good natured way we wish to direct the attention of our esteemed local contemporary to the fact that in its exuberance over the dim prospect of a $60,000 Federal building for Bristol, it is possible that it will create an impression and lead our people to believe that the Government is about to engage in an important work here, and, which if not consumated will only tend to discredit the faithfulness of the persons whom the Courier has linked in an authoritative way with the proposed government enterprise. It is unfair to Senator Penrose, to Congressman Wanger, to Postmaster Minster and to Mr. Grundy, whom the Courier states have practically assured the passage of Mr. Wanger's bill, and the erection of the buildings, because the bill will not become a law.

Almost at the very hour that the Courier was issued last week containing its glowing prediction, Mr. Tawney, the chairman of the House Appropriation Committee in Congress, was addressing that body, and stating that inasmuch as the United States Treasury was facing a deficit of $100,000,000 there would positively be no new appropriations by the Congress for Federal buildings. Therefore, Mr. Wanger's bill, a $60,000 appropriation for Bristol, we are very sorry to say is a dead duck.

This is how our innocent contemporary outlines the Federal building dream:

"That Congress will grant this boon to Bristol is confidently believed by all who know anything of Mr. Wanger's standing and influence in that body. He is the Chairman of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads and Expenditures Thereof, to which committee this bill will be referred in the House and therefore, it will unquestionably receive immediate consideration. But that is not all. Senator Penrose will undoubtedly use his influence to promote the project. It is known that the senior Senator is ready to help Bristol in this matter, and as he is chairman of the Senate Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, it is confidently believed that his committee will favor the passage of the appropriation of $60,000 asked, when the bill reaches the Senate. With both the Senator and Congressman Wanger interested, it is believed that both houses will pass the bill, to the great satisfaction of our citizens."

We would be delighted to share this dovelike faith with the Courier. But life is so real and earnest and legislation pursues such tortuous channels and there are so many obstacles in the path between the introduction of a bill and its approval by committees and House and Senate that we are inclined to be pessamistic.

In regard to the above extract from the Courier, Editor Watson is considerably twisted in his facts. Mr. Wanger is not the chairman of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads and Expenditures Thereof. There is no such committee and therefore, Mr. Wanger's bill will not be referred to it, neither can it "receive immediate consideration." We would kindly suggest to Editor Watson that he acquaint himself with the committees of Congress and also learn of which committee Mr. Wanger is chairman, and then ascertain the duties of that committee and the character of the measures that are referred to it for consideration.

We grieve to this ruthlessly shatter the elaborate "story" of our esteemed contemporary of "Bristol's New Federal Building," but it is right that our people should be correctly informed and our political leaders not placed in an embarrassing position by the over-enthusiasm of a guileless scribe.

The Appropriation Committee has closed the Treasury doors against the measure for Bristol's proposed Federal building. The thing that remains for Bristolians to do now is, regardless of party affiliations, to re-elect Mr. Wanger so that in another Congress he can again take up the matter and push it to a successful conclusion.

School Entertainment.

On Friday, January 31st, in the Bristol High School Assembly Hall, the Lincolns will give their illustrated travelogue on Alaska. Alaska is a land of wonderful glaciers, rivers and mountains, and these pictures given fine opportunity to see the beauties and wonders of that famous gold country. There will be a matinee in the afternoon at 3.30 especially for children and hope for a large audience for we believe such an entertainment will be a great delight to all children as well as adults. Admission for children, 15 cents; adults, 25 cents. Evening entertainment 8 p. m. Mr. Lincoln has a fine lantern.

Trolley Mail Service.

The second passenger car on the Newtown trolley line to be remodeled, repainted and fitted up with four motors, air-brakes and whistle, was put on the road last week. Two mail and express cars are about ready for use.

It is said that the company will carry the mail between Doylestown and Bristol, and that the change may take effect about March 1st. This will be welcome news to the patrons of the various post offices all along the line, who have suffered great inconveniences as the result of the discontinuance of the trolley mail service.

Ninety New Boats for Canal.

There is a good prospect that there will be a revival of the trade on the canal between Mauch Chunk and Bristol, which some years ago made this point an important one in the inland waterway navigation business. What appears to be an authoritive account in the Philadelphia papers states that more coal will in the future be shipped to Philadelphia as the result of the action of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, which has decided to build 90 double canal-boats for the carrying of coal from Mauch Chunk to Bristol and thence by river to the company's new pier, at Dyott street, in Port Richmond. This step, following the lines mapped out by the Inland Waterways Commission, means that Philadelphia will be the centre for the shipping of Lehigh coal.

Contracts for the building of the canal-boats, it is said, have already been let. Smith & Robinson will build 20 at Camden; Rilatt & Barrett, of Camden, will build ten; ten more will be built by a Delaware firm, and 50 will be built along the line of the canal by the company. Each boat will be 90 feet long, and will really be built in two parts, so that it may readily turn the curves of the canal. Each will be 16 feet 6 inches beam, 7 feet 6 inches in depth and will carry 100 tons of coal.

Business men believe that the rejuvenation of the canal system will mean a big economy to the manufacturing interests and a big drop in the price of coal.

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

Undismayed by the handicap of a large Republican majority in the county, Democratic candidates are beginning to blossom, notwithstanding the rigors of these chill mid-winter days. Lewis C. Rose, of Newportville, has made his official announcement in the Democratic organ at Doylestown as a candidate for the lower end Assembly nomination. Mr. Rose in his candidacy will undoubtedly have the strong backing of the Liquor Dealers Association, as he is engaged as a traveling salesman in the wholesale trade. Mr. Rose, however, will not have the field to himself, if rumors are correct, as it is reported that Jesse C. Everitt, who recently moved from Newportville to Hulmeville will contest for the nomination. Mr. Everitt a few years ago was elected Clerk of the Orphans Court. Hugh Thompson, proprietor of the Railroad House, Doylestown, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff and there are four Democratic candidates for County Commissioner in the field—Edmund Mason, of Morrisville; Isaiah Barndt, of Perkasie; Leidy S. Gruver, of Bedminster and John E. Kelly, of Wrightstown.

The Republicans of Bensalem township have made the following nominations:

Supervisors, James E. Magill, Thomas Randall; Overseer of the Poor, Thomas Randall; Constable, Allen H. Smith; School Directors, Edwin M. Thomas, William Johnson; Auditor, Harry S. Lippincott; Town Clerk, Henry L. Zickell.

U. D.—Registration Assessor, Horace A. Ridge; Judge of Elections, Augustus Bilger; Inspector, William C. Vansant.

L. D.—Registration Assessor, George B. Cherry; Judge of Elections, John A. Newcomb; Inspector, Alan C. Wildman.

The Democrats of the First ward of Bristol have endorsed the candidacy of William H. Booz, the Republican candidate for School Director and also that of Charles Brown the Republican nominee for Constable. John T. Grace was nominated for Inspector of Elections. No other candidates were named in opposition to the Republican ticket.

The Democrats of the Second ward of Bristol have nominated the following candidates to be voted for at the February election: Council, Frederick Rapp and Frank McIlhaney; School Director, Asa Helsel; Constable, James Bannon; Judge of Elections, Neal J. McIlvain; Inspector of Elections, Michael J. Wheeler.

The Democrats of the Fifth ward of Bristol held their primaries on last Friday evening. But one nomination was made for Council. The following is the ticket nominated:

Council, William A. Lane; School Director, Chauncey E. Stoneback; Constable, Patrick McDonnell; Judge of Elections, John Rodgers; Inspector of Elections, Edward L. Leigh.

New Library Books.

The following new books have been added to the Bristol Library: Encore, Ancient Law, Breuinhildes Paying Guest, Shepherd of the Hills, The Settler, Angel of Forgiveness, Confessions of a Heathen, Dr. Lavender's People.

Bristol Public School Notes.

The Swastika, the High School Literary Society, had a very interesting meeting Tuesday evening. The literary programme lasted for an hour and a quarter and was well rendered. The social programme was as thoroughly enjoyed as the other. The boys and girls are proving themselves good entertainers and each does his part willingly. The evening closed at the regulation hour, 9.30.

February 12th is the day appointed for the meeting of the mothers of the pupils in the secondary and grammar grades. This includes all of Washington street, Cedar street, six rooms in Bath street and four rooms in Wood street.

Criticisms of the Library.

Dear Editor:—In President Peirce's report of the Bristol Library in last week's issue of "The Gazette" he says: "Any suggestions as to how an increased interest can be brought about will be most welcome." So—in all kindness—may I be permitted to make a few remarks. In every other library I have ever visited one of the most rigidly enforced rules is: "There shall be no talking above a whisper." We all know how it is in our own dear library! It might be said that it does not make any difference in a library like ours if there is talking. But I have heard two gentlemen say there is always a buzz of conversation going on in the library that they cannot pick out a book in comfort, and both declared they would go there no more. And in both cases they were men who would otherwise use the library freely. In my own case, when I go to select a book, in order not to appear rude I will have to engage in a conversation when I am longing to give my individed attention to the books, and finally in desperation, pick up any old book, and then feel cross until the next library day comes around. I have been in much smaller libraries in New England towns, but have never heard a word spoken out loud, so the contrast is the more striking to an

Delaware Valley Naturalists' Union.

The mid-winter meeting of this society, which is a union of twelve societies of Philadelphia and nearby sections, including the Bucks County Natural Science Association, held one of its most successful and interesting sessions on Saturday last at the University of Pennsylvania Free Museum of Science and Art, Bristol being represented by eight of its citizens. At 2 p. m. the address of welcome was delivered by Samuel F. Houston, President of the Department of Archaeology, with response by James L. Pennypacker, President of the Union, after which under the direction of guides the various sections of the Museum were visited and attention called to objects of especial interest. Prof. Hilprecht, who has been under a hot fire of criticism lately, interpreted the hieroglyphics on the Babylonian tablets; reading them off at a rate that certainly proved him an expert in that particular line. A description of the exhibits in detail would require too much space. Many of these have no duplicates in the world, and all are noteworthy. A visit will well repay anyone. At 4 p. m. Joseph Elkinton delivered a lecture on China and Japan from personal observation during a three months trip. This was replete with interest and the colored lantern views of scenery and people were unusually fine. Mr. Elkinton's sprightly recital of incidents was much appreciated. Following this came a conference of the various societies comprising the Union; a report being made by a representative of each. At 6.30 supper was served to the 300 persons present, the time until eight o'clock being taken up by this pleasurable occupation and general sociability.

Prof. John W. Macfarlane then gave a most interesting talk on the "Flora of Five Mile Beach." His discoveries included 848 different species. This section includes Wildwood, Anglesea, Holly Beach, etc. Last and really capping the climax for superb illustration and grandeur of scenery, George Vaux, Jr., delivered an address on "Glacier Studies in the Canadian Rockies and Selkirks." This was a rare treat—the color effects on mountains, lakes and snow-clad peaks were indescribably beautiful.

For the information of those who may desire membership in the Bucks County Association, I would state that Miss Ellen Smith, of Newtown, is treasurer, and the dues are 25c a year.

W. C. PEIRCE.

Gibboney at Bristol.

It certainly was an inspiring sight last Sunday afternoon when the Gazette representative wandered into the First Baptist Church and beheld the spectacle of a large church auditorium packed to the doors with men. By actual count there were 842 men present, one-fourth of the voting population of Bristol. The occasion of this outpouring of men was the announcement that D. Clarence Gibboney, of Philadelphia, would be present and address the weekly men's meeting. Mr. Gibboney was on hand and spoke for over an hour on "Good Citizenship." The speaker made no attempts at oratory. The message he brought was told in simple langauge but he held his audience to the closest attention. He told of the time when he arrived in Philadelphia, over twenty years, a green country boy, who did not know what the word "speak-easy" meant; how he observed the open licentiousness of the city; how he enlisted in the case for a better order of things and he recounted the results that have followed. Mr. Gibboney made some pretty harsh criticism of the present administration of the City of Philadelphia and said it combined all the evils of the Ashbridge and Weaver administrations. He declared that to destroy the foundation of all the rottenness that exists in the political administration in this State at the present time the utter rout and defeat of Senator Penrose is absolutely necessary.

Mr. Gibboney dwelt for some time upon the pending local option campaign and paid a fine tribute to the services of the present members of the House of Representatives, for their action in supporting all good measures and consistently voting against bills that were inimical to the public good.

After the meeting the general comment upon Mr. Gibboney's address was favorable.

Joseph Keen Died Suddenly.

Joseph Keen, the well known Justice of the Peace of Hulmeville Borough, dropped dead from an attack of acute indigestion at his home on Sunday afternoon, after an illness of four hours. He was seventy-eight years of age. The news of his death was a severe shock to his family and many friends and at the present time Mrs. Keen is confined to her bed and is very critically ill. For some time past Justice Keen received a great deal of newspaper notoriety in his disposition of suits brought before him for violations of the auto laws in that borough. The Philadelphia autoists never felt very kindly towards Mr. Keen and recently a suit had been instituted against the Justice, charging him with making an illegal collection of one dollar. The hearing was set for this week and it is said his accusers had decided to not press the charges.

'Squire Keen was serving his second term as 'squire and was also borough tax collector. He made an excellent squire and faithfully performed the duties of his office and as a tax collector was one of the best the borough ever had. The funeral services were held at his late home on Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock and were conducted by Rev. J. Horace Barnes of the M. E. Church of which 'Squire Keen has long been a member. He is survived by his wife and four children as follows: Herbert Keen and Mrs. Rosalie Dodd, of Hulmeville; Mrs. Louis Brunner, of Torresdale, and Mrs. Ridge, of Bridgetown.

Dr. Joseph Thomas Dead.

Dr. Joseph Thomas, formerly a member of the State Senate, President of the Board of Trustees of the Norristown State Insane Asylum and President of the Quakertown National Bank, died at his home in Quakertown, this county, on Tuesday morning, in the 79th year of his age. Dr. Thomas had been suffering from sciatica for some time. The deceased was born in New Britain township and had resided in Quakertown since 1868. He received his education in the school of Joseph J. Clark, near Iron Hill. After teaching school at Fox Chase Philadelphia, he entered the University of Pennsylvania in 1854, and two years later graduated from that institution.

During the Civil War he was surgeon of the famous Corn Exchange Regiment, of Philadelphia, and previously captain of Company H, Third Pennsylvania Reserves.

From 1878 to 1882 Dr. Thomas represented Bucks county in the State Senate. From 1868 to 1873 he was assistant assessor of internal revenues. In 1890 he was appointed postmaster of Quakertown to fill the unexpired term of E. T. Ochs.

Among the enterprises other than the Quakertown National Bank in which Dr. Thomas was interested were the Bucks County Trust Company, Union Trust Company, of Philadelphia, and the Lehigh Valley Cold Storage Company. He was also a trustee of the Norristown Insane Asylum, and has justly been called the "father of the 512," the Quakertown Lodge, F. and A. M.

Dr. Thomas was a member of various scientific societies, and was an accomplished linguist. As a citizen, financier, public servant and craftsman he enjoyed in a high degree the respect and confidence of his fellows.

Our Country's Toast.

Among the legends of our late Civil War is a story of a New Year's dinner party given by Americans residing in Paris at which were propounded sundry toasts concerning not so much the past and present as the expected glories of the great American Nation. In the general character of these toasts geographical considerations were very prominent, and the principal fact which seemed to occupy the minds of the speakers was the unprecedented bigness of our country. "Here's to the United States," said the first speaker. "Bounded on the north by British America, on the south by the Gulf of Mexico, on the east by the Atlantic and on the west by the Pacific Ocean." "But," said the second speaker, "this is far too limited a view of the subject. In assigning our boundaries we must look to the great and glorious future which is prescribed for us by the manifest destiny of the Anglo-Saxon race. 'Here's to the United States. Bounded on the north by the North Pole, on the south by the south pole, on the east by the rising and on the west by the setting sun.'" Here arose a third speaker, a very serious gentleman from the West. "If we are going," said this truly patriotic American, "to leave the historic past and present and take our manifest destiny into account, why restrict ourseyles within the narrow limits assigned by our fellow countryman who has just sat down. 'I give you the United States. Bounded on the north by the Aurora Borealis, on the south by the procession of the equinoxes, on the east by the primeval chaos and on the west by the Day of Judgment.'"

Taxing the Picture Shows.

Editor Gazette:—Should the borough authorities try to collect the tax on moving picture shows, which Attorney James has ruled they are liable to under the borough law of 1873, this popular amusement will be a thing of the past in a short time. A borough representative called at the two moving picture shows located on Mill street, this week with instructions to collect $3 each night as a tax, which is more than rural saloon licenses cost.

Probably it would be better for the people if the borough officials would first examine these places of amusement as to their safety, which they have never done, although, moving picture shows have been in operation for over a year in Bristol, and then make an ordinance regarding the license.

Moving picture shows should be made to pay a license the same as any other place of amusement, but a tax of $3 for each performance is unreasonable in the extreme.

FORMER SHERIFF SMITH DEAD

After great suffering for many years from rheumatism and Bright's disease, ex-Sheriff W. Harry Smith died early yesterday morning at his home in Doylestown. Mr. Smith had been more or less confined to his home for the past year, but would at times rally and be able to be out on the street and greet his many friends. Several times when his affliction became serious it was believed that he would never rally, but his strong constitution and will power would predominate and he would gain an extension of life. Last Saturday he was out on the streets.

The deceased was a son of the late James Smith and was a native of Philadelphia where his father was employed as a machinist in the Baldwin Locomotive Works. After the death of his father, he and his mother moved to Doylestown, where he made his home until called away by death.

Politically Mr. Smith was a Democrat and as such served as High Constable of the borough. In his younger days he learned the cigar making trade with his step-father, John Cuffel, and afterwards the painter's trade. In 1880 he went West and for over three years roughed it in the wilds of Colorado and became foreman of a gang of painters for the Union Pacific Railroad and upon his return to Doylestown followed painting as a profession.

The deceased was for five years a member of Company G of the National Guards, and was at one time Overseer of the Poor of Doylestown.

In 1899 the deceased was a candidate for the office of Sheriff, but was defeated, and in 1902 he was again a candidate for this office and was elected on the fusion ticket and served until the election of Albert S. Paxson, the present incumbent.

Mr. Smith was also considered a good detective and was connected with several important cases with Detective Jacob Johnson, of Northampton county.

The deceased was born in 1852 and besides his mother is survived by one brother, Oliver Smith, of Reading.

HORRIBLE RAIL-ROAD ACCIDENT

John Morrison, of Andalusia, was struck and killed by a railroad train as he was walking on or near the track on last Saturday evening. Mr. Morrison was well known about the neighborhood of Lower Bensalem township, having been for a long time in the employ of Lewis Walton, proprietor of the Poquessing ice plant, and was personally well liked by everybody. He was a member of Bristol Lodge of Elks, and a delegation of that order attended the funeral yesterday afternoon, taking with them a beautiful floral tribute. The deceased is survived by a widow and niece who have the sympathy of their neighbors and friends.

Apparently no one saw the accident which resulted in the horrible death of John Morrison and the terrible mutilation of his body, which was simply ground to pieces. Not having come home to supper Mrs. Morrison became alarmed and at about eleven o'clock, in company with some neighbors, left the house to walk to the ice plant to learn the cause of Mr. Morrison's non-appearance. Near the tracks at the Andalusia station Mrs. Morrison saw a coat on the ground and upon examination she identified it as the one worn by her husband. Further search revealed the fact that a terrible accident had occurred. Strewn over the tracks for a considerable distance were pieces of the mangled body. Pieces of arms, legs, head and body were scattered in every direction. Deputy Coroner Rue, of Bristol, was summoned and it took him over an hour to gather up the frozen fragments of the body.

It is presumed that the deceased was struck by a train at about six o'clock and the body tossed over on another track where it laid to be ground up by passing trains.

Local Option Meeting.

On Tuesday afternoon at the Bristol Methodist Church the preliminary steps were taken for the formation of a local option campaign organization. Rev. S. E. Nicholson, of Harrisburg, Secretary of the State Anti-Saloon League, and Rev. Homer Tope, in charge of the Philadelphia district, were present and outlined the plan of campaign.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Burns, of the Bristol Presbyterian Church, was chosen chairman of the meeting, and A. M. Thomas, of Doylestown, secretary.

A nominating committee of five was appointed consisting of Rev. D. Mast Gordon, of Bristol; A. M. Thomas, of Doylestown; George Ardrey, of Bristol; Rev. H. E. Walhey, of Langhorne, and Rev. J. H. Barnes, of Hulmeville. The committee will enlarge its membership to fifteen or twenty, and will report at a meeting to be held at Newtown on February 12th.

Plans were also considered for forming local option clubs throughout the county. It is the purpose to hold a general meeting at Doylestown the latter part of February when it is expected that the final organization will be perfected.

The meeting in Bristol on Tuesday was not largely attended, not over twenty-five men being present. There were a larger number of ladies. Rev. C. E. Burns, Rev. W. T. Johnston, Rev. D. Mast Gordon and Rev. J. K. Moorhouse, of Bristol, were present, and also pastors of churches at Eddington, Hulmeville, Langhorne and Doylestown.

One of the biggest live-bird shooting matches ever held in this county took place on the grounds of the Bristol Shooting Association at Croydon on Wednesday afternoon, the main event being between John Brewer, ex-champion of the world, and Firman Hendrickson, of Allentown, N. Brewer won the match by killing 43 out of 46 birds shot at, while Hendrickson killed 37 out of the same number.

A large number of crack shots were in attendance, including "Chief" Bender, the Athletics' star pitcher; Richard Lamb, of Mount Holly, N. J.; Patterson, of Trenton; Young, of Philadelphia; Belloff, of Newark; Vandegrift, of Cornwells, and a number of others.

After the main event a number of sweepstakes were shot, in which Arthur Fine, of Bristol, was one of the two men with straight scores, killing ten birds without a miss.

McBride, and Mrs. Mary Pettit, of Philadelphia, and Misses Ella and Elizabeth McBride, of Bristol. Nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren also survive him. Our Terrible Tongue.

You take a swim,
You say you've swum
Your nails you trim,
But they're not trum;
And milk you skim
Is never skum.

When words you speak,
Those words are spoken;
But a nose you tweak
Is never twoken;
Nor can you seek
And say you've soken.

A top you spin,
The top is spun;
A hare you skin,
Yet 'tis not skun;
Nor can a grin
Be ever grun.

If we forget
Then we've forgotten;
But if we bet
We haven't botten;
No house we let
Is ever lotten;
What we upset
Is not upsotten;
Now don't these prove
Our language rotten?

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS OF BUCKS COUNTY.

NOTICE to DANIEL R. BOWER, if living and to the heirs and legal representatives of the said Daniel R. Bower, if dead, and each and every of them, and to all other persons interested in the mortgage hereinafter mentioned.

You are hereby notified that at a Court of Common Pleas holden at Doylestown, in and for the county of Bucks, on the sixth day of January, A. D., 1908, William V. Leech, John J. Tyrol and Ellwood W. Minster, trustees of the unincorporated association named and called BRISTOL LODGE, NO. 970, BENEVOLENT AND PROTECTIVE ORDER OF ELKS presented their petition setting forth that the petitioners, as trustees as aforesaid were the owners in fee of all that certain brick messuage and wharf and lot of land, situate on the southeasterly side of Radcliffe street and southwesterly side of Walnut street, in the Borough of Bristol, county of Bucks and State of Pennsylvania, containing in front or breadth on the said Radcliffe street sixty-one and one quarter feet and extending in length or depth along said Walnut street between parallel lines to low water mark in the river Delaware or as far as law and custom may allow; bounded northwestwardly by the said Radcliffe street, northeastwardly by the said Walnut street, southeastwardly by the river Delaware and southwestwardly by land late of Hilborn Knight, now of Ernest Lawrence.

That the said brick messuage and wharf and lot of land, hereinabove bounded and described, appears by the record in the office of the Recorder of Deeds at Doylestown in and for the county and State aforesaid, to be subject to the following mortgage, to-wit:

All that certain indenture of mortgage given and executed by one John L. Lanck (then the owner of the above described premises) to Jerome Tantum, bearing date the First day of April, A. D. 186[illegible], and duly recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds aforesaid, in mortgage book No. 48, page 212, &c., to secure the payment of the sum of five hundred dollars, on or before the first day of April, A. D. 187[illegible], with interest at six per cent. The said land described in said mortgage being as follows, to-wit: All that certain brick messuage and wharf and lot of land situate on the southeasterly side of Radcliffe street and southwesterly side of Walnut street, in the Borough of Bristol, in the county of Bucks and State of Pennsylvania, containing in front or breadth on the said Radcliffe street sixty-one and one-quarter feet and extending in length or depth along said Walnut street between parallel lines to low water mark in the river Delaware or as far as law and custom may allow; bounded northwestwardly by the said ground now or late of John Helm.

That the said land described in said mortgage is the same land as is hereinbefore described as belonging to your petitioners.

That the said mortgage was duly assigned by the said Jerome Tantum unto Daniel R. Bower, of the city of Trenton, in the State of New Jersey, by assignment bearing date the third day of July, A. D. 1868, and duly recorded in the office for the Recording of Deeds, &c., aforesaid, in mortgage book No. 51, page 110, &c.

That the said mortgage remains unsatisfied of record, but by reason of the lapse of time there exists a legal presumption that the said mortgage is paid.

That your petitioners are advised, informed and believe that the said Daniel R. Bower, the legal holder and owner of the said mortgage, by assignment thereof as hereinabove set forth, has long since died, and the name and residence of his heirs and legal representatives are to your petitioners unknown.

That no demand has ever been made upon your petitioners at any time, nor upon the preceding owners of the said brick messuage, wharf and lot of land for any part or all of the principal sum of said mortgage, or any interest due thereon, and praying the said Court to make an order directing that notice of the facts in this petition set forth be given by advertisement, and upon proof being made of the legal presumption of the payment of the said mortgage, to decree and direct satisfaction to be entered upon the record of the said mortgage hereinbefore mentioned, upon the payment of the proper costs and charges thereon, and that such satisfaction shall forever thereafter discharge, defeat and release said mortgage and forever bar and exclude all actions brought or to be brought thereon, and to do such other things as are directed by the Act of Assembly in such case made and provided.

Whereupon, on die, the said Court made the following order. AND NOW, to-wit, January 6, A. D. 1908, the within petition having been presented and read in open Court, it is hereby ordered and decreed: that Albert S. Paxson, High Sheriff of the county of Bucks aforesaid, be and is hereby directed to serve notice of the facts set forth in the above mentioned and hereto attached petition upon Daniel R. Bower, the legal holder of the mortgage in said petition mentioned, if he be living, and upon the heirs and legal representatives of said Daniel R. Bower, if he be dead, and each and every of them, and all other parties in interest in said mortgage, if any, if they can be found in the county of Bucks, and in case all of the said parties cannot be found in said county then the said Sheriff be and is hereby directed to give public notice of the said facts set forth in said petition in the "Bucks County Gazette," a weekly newspaper published within the said county of Bucks, once a week for four weeks successively, prior to the then next term of said Court to be holden at Doylestown, in and for the said county of Bucks, on the twenty-fourth day of February, A. D. 1908, requiring all of the said parties to be and appear at the said term of said Court at 11 o'clock A. M., on the twenty fourth day of February, A. D. 1908, to answer the said petition and show cause if any they may have why satisfaction of said mortgage shall not be decreed by the Court according to the Act of Assembly in such case made and provided.

THE LAND OF OPHIR.

Where Was It—in Mashonaland, South Arabia or India?

One of the most interesting and important questions concerning Biblical sites perpetually invites research and persistently evades solution "Where is the land of Ophir?" Dr Karl Peters at a public meeting in Berlin declared emphatically that this famous Biblical region is located between the Zambezi and Limpopo rivers He told his German audience how he has discovered many shafts of ancient gold mines, 500 temples, fortifications and other ruins of Phoenician origin Dr Peters affirms that coins unearthed in Mashonaland belong undoubtedly to the time of King Solomon His opinion is that no other part of Africa could have exported the ivory, silver and precious stones which are recorded in the Bible as coming from Ophir

Against this theory, founded as it undoubtedly is on very plausible evidence, Bible students are still likely to maintain, on the testimony of Genesis x, 29, that Ophir was a section of South Arabia Here down to the time of Ezekiel the Phoenicians still landed to procure gold and gems with which those famous sailors and merchants of the ancient world traded in many countries distant from their Syrian shores

Many erudite writers have attempted to identify Sofala, on the east coast of Africa, with Ophir, while yet others have located it in India One of the most learned essays written on the subject is from the pen of Professor Hommel, who argued that the ancient land of gold was Arabia Felix —Homiletic Review

A Man to Be Envied.

"Do you know" remarked a visitor to a Broadway hostelry, "I'm always inclined to envy the clerk in a hotel like this He is always well groomed and smiling has a wider acquaintance among the wealthy or well to do than I can ever hope to have and is always so aggressively at peace with the world and himself, also he wears, more often than not, a diamond scarfpin or ring which is certainly beyond me It's a pretty comfortable berth"

Several hours later the hotel clerk reached for his coat and hat As he left the office he turned to a comrade

"Say, Ned, can you let me have $10 till the first? Rent due at home tomorrow, and I'm shy Doctor's bills hit me pretty hard this month, and I don't want to lie awake tonight if I can help it.'—New York Globe

Her Poor Memory

A woman who belonged to an ancient but penniless family married a rich plebeian, but she never forgot the misalliance nor allowed any one else to do so. One day, attended by a servant, she went into a store and gave an order

"And where shall I send it, madam?" said the shopkeeper

"Jean," said the woman, turning to her servant, "tell the man your master's name I never can remember it."

The Average Man.

"Pa, what's an average man?"

"One who has a sneaking suspicion that he has qualities which make him superior to anybody else"—Chicago Tribune

Would Get Copyright Fee.

"What can I do for you, sir?'

"Well, you see, parson, there's a girl with me that I'd like to get copyrighted in my own name"—New York Press

To Catch the Train.

A physician says early rising is an error More frequently it is a necessity.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Receiving a new truth is adding a new sense.—Liebig.

Are You Sick?

Much sickness is due to a weak nervous system. Yours may be. If it is, you cannot get well until you restore nerve strength Your nervous system is nature's power house; the organs of your body get their power from it. If the power is not there, the action of the organs is weak, and disease (sickness) follows. Dr. Miles' Nervine cures the sick because it soothes the irritated and tired nerves and gives the system a chance to recuperate. Try it, and see if you do not quickly feel its beneficial effect.

"I was given up to die by a leading doctor Got one of Dr Miles books and found that Dr Miles Nervine fit my case From the very first dose I took I got better I am better now than I have been for years and do all my own work on the farm That's what Dr Miles' Nervine has done for me and I am glad to recommend it to others"
JOHN JAMES Riverton Nebr

Your druggist sells Dr Miles' Nervine, and we authorize him to return price of first bottle (only) if it fails to benefit you.
